

Cultural Communications Specialists | Marketing & Public Relations

bd

BUILDING DESIGN ARCHITECTS' FAVOURITE WEEKLY

FRIDAY APRIL 13 2007

5

War, what is it good for? Influencing modern architecture, argues a new book. See Culture page 24

Shore thing

As Britain basks in the first sustained period of sunshine this year, Lionel T Dean of design firm Future Factories has unveiled his vision of a contemporary beach hut.

The twister-shaped Wizard of Oz design is one of 100 models that will be on display at the forthcoming Bathing Beauties exhibition, part of Architecture Week. The event follows a competition organised by artist Michael Trainor, which selected nine winners from over 240 entrants bidding to build modern beach huts on the Lincolnshire coast. The models will be on display at the National Centre for Craft & Design, Sleaford, June 15-24.

MORE BEACH HUT DESIGNS
at www.bdonline.co.uk